The Final Agreement.

To all who may desire to know how they settled it we commend the following from the Courier Journal. It is a clear, succinct summary of the whole matter, telling what the Russo-Japanese Treaty provides, and you don't have to wade through several columns to find it:

The terms of the treaty between Russia and Japan, as signed by the commissioners at Portsmouth, constitute a plain and simple document, giving little evidence of all the contention and excitement of which it has been the subject during the four weeks it has taken to perfect it. It comprises fifteen principal and two supplemental articles, the latter providing for the mutual evacuation of Manchuria within eighteen months, and fixing the line of partition on the island of Sakhalin.

The specific provisions of the treaty are: the recognition of the preponderant influence of Japan in Korea, and equal rights of Russian subjects with those of other countries; the simultaneous evacuation of Manchuria by both Russian and Japanese troops; the accession of Japan to all the rights heretofore possessed by Russians at Port Arthur, Dalian and adjacent land and waters; with the personal rights and properties of Russian subjects safeguarded; guarantee of security to China in her tenure of Manchuria; definition of the respective rights of each Power to certain railroad lines assigned to each in Manchuria; the subdivision of Sakhalin with the right of free navigation in adjacent waters, and respective rights in Sakhalin; fishery rights of Japan in Russian waters; renewal of commercial treaty as existing between the two Powers before the war, with most favored nation clause; restitution of prisoners upon payment of cost of maintenance; the ratification of the treaty by the respective sovereigns within fifty days after the signature.

Such is a brief abstract of this simple and matter-of-fact document, which has engaged the attention of the world with such interest. When we reflect upon the bloody events of the war which has been waged for more than eighteen months, and realize the simple terms upon which it has been adjusted, it seems strange that in this enlightened age the result reached by this treaty could not have been effected peaceably and without the loss of so many lives and such great expense. The reflection, however, only tends to enhance the appreciation of the gain to the world in the final adjustment of the conflict, and the means by which it has been brought about. The experience will be well bought if the same spirit of mutual concession on the part of the principals and friendly interest upon that of other nations shall lead to peaceful arbitration for the settlement of future international differences without a resort to arms.

Washington, Sept. 11.—The United States Fish Commission said that it has done the handsome thing by Kentucky in the liberal distributions of fishes which it has made in the Bluegrass State this year. So far as trips for distribution purposes have been made in Kentucky, one through the middle and the other through the western part of the State. It is announced that the fish can be sent a little later into Kentucky with a supply of crappies for distribution, but that will depend upon circumstances. The crappie is a difficult fish to transport. When it is taken out of the Mississippi or its tributaries it must be at a season of the year when the river water is cool enough to prevent too great a change of temperature in handling. For instance, when the river water is at a temperature of 85° or 95°, crappies will die if they are removed and placed in cans in the fish cannery's transportation cars. When the temperature of the river water is as it is safe to transport them, the fish are transported from the big coal men of Ashland and Tug Fork and Rockcastle railroads, both of which are developed in a syn-annual report of Pennington Warner, covering his office for the ending June 30 last. At the year the number of declined to $98,441, a loss for the year of $6,367.

Ky., Sept. 6.—The Japanese battleship Mikasa fought fire and sank in the Sea of Japan, losing 600 lives.

The Mikasa was the flagship of the Japanese navy, flying the flag of Vice Admiral Togo, the Commander-in-Chief. She was present at all the principal engagements during the war and was on several occasions reported severely damaged in action. In the battle of the Sea of Japan she led the fleet into action, and then

COAL FIELDS

Of Big Sandy Are Great Prize For Railroads.

C. H. & D.'S PROPOSED MOVE.

The Courier-Journal has sent a staff correspondent, Howard Flanagan, to the Big Sandy Valley to gather information and on last Tuesday published the following over his signature:

Paintsville, Ky., Sept. 11.—Railroad building and proposed railroad building to the unopened coal fields of Eastern Kentucky have become interesting if not exciting. Circumstances which railway builders may not control are signaling the opening of construction work by one before another gets ahead. It looks as if there will not be one, but several outlets for the coals of the great Elkhorn fields.

The most recent plan to attract attention is that of the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton, which is scheduled to come from Ironton, O., to the Big Sandy country. It is scarcely known beyond the dead hills of Pike and Johnson counties that the Norfolk and Western railroad is already in Northern Kentucky with a branch carrying Elkhorn coal out of the eastern edge of Pike county. Not many people know that the Chesapeake and Ohio opened its branch from Whitehouse to Pikeville July 1 of this year. The road is now in operation to Marrowbone creek, and in a few days trains will be running through to Elkhorn City at the break of Sandy.

The Norfolk and Western and Chesapeake and Ohio have actual footing in the country. Still there is much to be done before the country can be called open. The limitations of those lines will be seen later when the lay of the country is made clear. What seems to be an inevitable contest between rival railroads for the tonnage of these fields is shaping.

Considering the announcement of President Zimmerman, of the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton, that his company had determined to enter the field, the coming of seven other multi-millionaires into the area with a railroad from Lincoln, Va., to the Breaks of Sandy, 350 miles, has the spirit of a dash of a troop of horses. The men are Thomas F. Ryan, Marshall Field, Norman B. Ream, John J. Mitchell, James Blair, Thomas J. Coolidge and George L. Carter. It is said that those men own the South and West railroads absolutely. They have financed the corporation among themselves. The South and West Railroad Company is going from Lincoln to the Breaks. It is not a project. It is near completion. In that list of seven names will be seen the control of the Seaboard Airline, which will meet the Chesapeake and Ohio. It goes from Ashland to Louisville, through the East Fork country, thirty-four miles of farming district in Louisville. This takes it from Ashland through the center of Boyd county to the eastern edge of Lawrence county to Louisville. From Louisville to the Breaks of Sandy the new line parallels with the Chesapeake and Ohio, holding the opposite bank of the river. These two routes were selected by men who know every foot of the country. They say there is no other way in to these hills. It is clear that any railroad must follow the river and the lowlands, since it cannot be practical to keep piercing the mountains and retracing its way. Neither the main line of railroad strike the coal in its workable beds in the highlands of the creeks.

What the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton is going to do, then, depends upon the feeling of the other roads.

The Chesapeake and Ohio has protested to the coal operators against fields. Whatever may be the intention of their builders toward Kentucky and other new railroad projects the study of the map makes certain that their purpose in coming to the Breaks is to get an outlet to the Ohio River for the products of their own mines on the Virginia side of the Pine Mountains.

The Lexington and Eastern railroad appears to be buying rights-of-way for an extension of its line from Jackson to Hazard and Whitesburg and probably to Pound Gap, its terminal.

Everything hangs on the extension of the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton from Ironton, if there is to be a competitive line to the heart of the coal fields. Coal men feel assured now that the situation is in their own hands and that any one of several interests must build that line if the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton does not. No rights-of-way have been secured by the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton people. It is not probable that it will be necessary for them to make a survey. It is more likely that there is an understanding between them and the owners of the Ashland and Tug River railroad and the Rockcastle railroad franchises that opens the way simply. Speaking in New York, President Zimmerman says the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton expansion will be built. The Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton officials in Cincinnati say the project has not yet been brought to their attention.

This much is known: A railroad bridge from Ironton, O., to Ashland, Ky., is in construction. The Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton is not building that older. A private company is doing it, but the bridge is being built to let the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton from Ironton, O., to Ashland, Ky., also. It is known that the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton has spent $100,000 for real estate in Ashland, where a depot and other buildings are to be placed.

To go into the city of Ashland it would be necessary to have a charter, and that has been happily arranged by using the charter of the Ashland and Tug Fork railroad, which gives exclusive rights for four miles through the city of Ashland.

The Ashland and Tug Fork and Rockcastle railroads, both of which are developed in a syneastern Kentucky to meet emergencies and influence railroad building. No work has been done on either line, but the surveys point the way and reduce the matter of getting rights-of-way to a detail. As the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton has taken over the charter of the Ashland and Tug Fork for four miles through Ashland the surveys of the Ashland and Tug Fork and Rockcastle roads are understood to be conditionally at its command. In point of fact the Ashland and Tug Fork and Rockcastle railroads are proposed enterprises of John C. C. Mayo. The surveys and much of the right-of-way up every creek that leads to the workable veins of the big coal fields belong to John C. C. Mayo and his associates, some partners in private and some stockholders in the Northern Coal and Coke Company, which represents a vast investment in Kentucky coal of several rich men. Those surveys and rights-of-way up the creeks are organized to numerous railroad enterprises under different names.

Getting into the country with a main line of railroad is only the beginning, although necessarily an essential point. Getting up the creeks will require many branches.

Upon the understanding between the coal operators and the railroads will depend the building of these branches, either by the operators themselves, or by the railroads, and upon the altitude of the railroad will depend the tonnage. If the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton comes in harmony with the South and West railroad the development of mines and settlement of population in eastern Kentucky may be considered underway and needing nothing but time to aid their growth.

Only one route now seems practicable for the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton to follow from Ashland. That is the line of the Rockcastle survey. The survey of the Ashland and Tug Fork road parallels the Chesapeake and Ohio all the way to Elkhorn, following the opposite bank of the Big Sandy. The route of the Rockcastle line from Ashland is considered more feasible and less objectionable to both the new road and the Chesapeake and Ohio. It goes from Ashland to Louisville, through the East Fork country, thirty-four miles of farming district in Louisville. This takes it from Ashland through the center of Boyd county to the eastern edge of Lawrence county to Louisville. From Louisville to the Breaks of Sandy the new line parallels with the Chesapeake and Ohio, holding the opposite bank of the river. These two routes were selected by men who know every foot of the country. They say there is no other way in to these hills. It is clear that any railroad must follow the river and the lowlands, since it cannot be practical to keep piercing the mountains and retracing its way. "I SUFFERED TERRIBLY WITH FEMALE WEAKNESS."

Says Mrs. Esther M. Milner.

Mrs. ESTHER M. MILNER, DeGraff, Ohio, writes:

"I was a terrible sufferer from female weakness and had the headache continually. I was not able to do my housework for my husband and myself. I wrote you and described my condition as near as possible. You recommended Peruna. I took four bottles and was completely cured. Peruna is wonderful medicine and have recommended it to my friends with best results."—Mrs. E. M. Milner.

Dr. S. B. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, has had over fifty years experience in the treatment of female esthetic diseases. He advises women free of charge. If you are suffering from any female derangement write him a description of your symptoms and he will give you the benefit of his experience in the treatment of women.

Mrs. Mamie Groth, Platteville, Wis., writes: "After suffering for several years with frequent headaches and headaches, I am entirely without pain of any kind now, thanks to Peruna."—Miss Mamie Groth.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

men's building the line were complete.

The length of this line will be 125 miles. It is more of a crucial need to the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton than to the coal operators. This road controls the Perry, Marion and Detroit Southern railroads which reach the Ohio river at Ironton. This makes a system of 5,000 miles, a system almost entirely without coal. When the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton got a big interest in the Northern Coal and Coke Company it had been looking the ground over away in the northern part of West with a view of extending its line with the view of getting coal for its own use and for the vast country it reaches all the way to the Great Lakes. It found in Kentucky exactly what it wanted and much easier to get.

An understanding between the big interests cannot hurt Kentucky. A disagreement between them would not retard construction. Either way the country is certain to be opened soon. Interests of different coal and railroad syndicates do not necessarily clash. The syndicates composed of Thomas F. Ryan and Marshall Field, which is back of the South and West railroad, owns 300,000 acres of coal in Dickinson county, Va., just over the Pine Mountain from Kentucky. It has completed its line in spots, having one section of six miles in operation. It is building now through Dickenson county to the Breaks.

Not all the big interests that are represented in railroad building have been mentioned. Kountz Bros., New York bankers, have had investments in Pike and Martin counties, Ky. It is commonly said that they intend to build at once a branch up Wolfe creek, connecting their property in Martin county with the Norfolk and Western. Kountz Bros. have upward of 30,000 acres in a block in Martin county and as much or more in the southern section of Pike county.

All that remains to be mentioned about railroads in this end of the State is the route of the Norfolk and Western extension. Formerly it used to go up Pigeon creek from Tug fork to Naugatuck, and down Twelve Pole creek to the Ohio river at Kenova. It did not enter Kentucky, but it skirted Pike and Martin counties. That route to Kenova, 100 miles, has been abandoned for any purpose except local traffic. The new route is from Naugatuck following Tug Fork and Big Sandy through Louisa, Ky., and thence along the east bank of the river to Kenova, saving a haul of thirty-five miles. It is said that this new line has doubled the carrying capacity of the Norfolk and Western from the Virginia and Kentucky coal fields, and it is the first line to open the big coal veins of Kentucky in Pike county. To meet the Norfolk and Western private parties are building a branch road up Pigeon creek, in Pike county, where large mining operations are to be immediately started. The Chesapeake and Ohio has built its first branch up Marrowbone creek to head. This is through a large field of the thickest coals, and operators are at work.

Senator Camden is reported as having told Mr. Zimmerman that if he or his company did not want to build this railroad at once that he, Senator Camden and his associates would build it. It is considered practical for the Northern Coal and Coke Company alone to issue bonds on its coal property in Kentucky for an amount sufficient to construct and equip a road from the Elk horn district to Ashland.

Portsmouth, N. H., Sept. 5.—The peace treaty was signed at 3:52 p.m. Mr. Witte was the first to affix his signature. A salute from the navy yard signaled the signing of the treaty.

As soon as the firing of the salute of eighteen guns was heard all the church bells at Newcastle and Kittery and Portsmouth were rung as a sign of joy for about ten minutes, while flags were hoisted and general satisfaction was manifested.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 6.—A bulletin made public by the Controller of the Currency shows remarkable strides in the extension of banking facilities in Kentucky since March 14, 1900, when the law took effect permitting banks with a minimum capital to August 31, 1905, there have been organized in Kentucky fifty-five national banks of a total capital of $3,970,000.

This is twenty-three more national banks than were established in the same period in all of the New England States—Massachusetts, Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Rhode Island and Connecticut. Only nine States in the union invested more capital in new national banks than Kentucky during the last fifteen years. Of the fifty-five new banks organized in Kentucky thirty-seven have capital of less than $50,000 and eight have more than $50,000.

ULYSSES.

Charlie Davis, who has been very low with typhoid fever for a long time, is improving nicely.

Monroe Castle, of Lowmansville, died of dysentery last Thursday. He was sick only one week. He leaves a bride of but four weeks. Also, father, mother, sisters, and brothers to weep because he is gone.

He was married to Miss Bessie Hale, of Lowmansville, about one month ago. The bereaved friends have the sympathy of the entire neighborhood.

Mariam Borders, of London, Ohio, made a brief visit to friends here recently.

Sam Young and family, who were the guests of friends here for a few days, have returned to their home at Lucasville, O.

Mrs. Mary Daniels, of Toms' creek, called on relatives here Saturday and Sunday. She went home Monday.

At the last session of the Free Will Baptist yearly meeting, Miss Emma Borders, of this place, was commissioned to travel on a home mission and organize Sunday Schools, visit and build up churches and Sunday Schools, and do any missionary work she may deem necessary.

Jesse Hicks and wife have returned from a visit to Greenup.

Mr. Hillman was over among us in consultation with Dr. Thompson as to some patients here.

Aunt Rachel Kitchen is still improving.

Mrs. Bingham and two sons, who have been visiting Elsie Webb, have returned to Russell.

Fred Hensley has returned from Greenbrier county, W. Va. Pit.

Louisa Boy in Chicago.

The NEWS delights to chronicle
the success of the "boys" who went out from Louisa to battle with the world. There are many of them, and every one who set his mark high has won merited distinction. So the following from the Lexington Leader had no trouble in finding a place in these columns:

Henry G. Snyder, counsel for the Southern Mutual Investment Company who has successfully conducted the legal operations necessary to the combination of the Southern and the two St. Louis concerns that have been merged into the American Bond Company, with headquarters in Chicago, will be general counsel of the new institution, and will remove from Lexington to Chicago. He has been in Lexington for a few days packing his library and papers and shipping them to the new offices in the Chamber of Commerce building in Chicago, and will go from here to St.
Louis, where he will be engaged for several weeks adjusting various legal and financial details connected with the closing up of the affairs of the two companies in that city, after which he will join President Bowman and other officers of the American Bond Company
in Chicago.

Mr. Snyder's departure from Lexington will be greatly regretted by a host of friends he has made in the three years he has lived in that city. He was graduated from Centre College, at Danville, and took law courses at Columbia and Yale, making a special study of insurance law upon which he has delivered lectures at Central University (old Centre) since locating in Lexington.

Since the death of Gen. S. E. Hill has been United States Commissioner, by appointment of Federal Judge Cochran, of the Eastern District of Kentucky, a position which he will now resign. He has also been secretary of the Republican Committee of Fayette county for several years and his resignation will probably be tendered at the next meeting of the committee. He filled the position most acceptably to all elements and his services will be greatly missed.

West Virginia Conference.

The following from the New Albany

Ledger shows the estimation in which a native-born Louis "boy" is held in another State. It is only another instance of what can be done by those who try, and is support of our statement that no young Lousian who has honestly tried has ever failed. Mr. Holt's friends in this section will be glad to hear of his success:

"At a meeting of the Quarterly
Conference of Jennie DePauw Memorial
M. E. Church, held on Wednesday night, the Conference, by a unanimous vote, asked the Indiana M. E.
Conference to return to that church for the fourth year, its present able and efficient and popular pastor, the Rev. Davis P. Holt. The action of the Quarterly Conference is heartily endorsed by the entire membership of the church, and is gladly received by Mr. Holt's many friends in the other Methodist churches of the city.

Mr. Holt is a preacher of force and power. During his pastorate he has built up all the spiritual and material interests of the church. Faithful and true and just in all things he has been a tower of strength to Jennie DePauw Memorial Church in its recent struggles to free the church edifice from debt and establish the congregation upon a solid foundation and in an influential position among the churches of the city. These efforts have proved eminently successful—the walls of Zion are established—the year of Jubilee has come. All the people of New Albany will welcome Dr. Holt back to the fourth year of his pastorate here."

Prof. George McClure went down
Wednesday morning with fifteen adults—pupils for the Institute at Danville. These pupils were gathered from the upper Sandy counties and will be properly cared for by the State.

Among those who went from this end of the State we gathered the following names:

to the whole system and to the womb and its appendages in particular. For over-worked "worn-out" "travelers," de-

being unequalled as an appetizing cordial and restorative tonic.

It's an insult to your intelligence for a dear to take a pain or illness upon you an alibi substitute for this world-famed medicine. You know what you want. It's his business to meet that want. It's his business to sell that want. It's the thinking of the larger profit he'll make—not of your welfare.
